YOUTH TOUR INVESTS IN YOUNG LEADERS

BY SHELLY YORK

In June, 38 Iowa students punched their tickets to the once-in-a-lifetime, whirlwind tour of our nation's capital that's known as Iowa Youth Tour!

The program is designed for students to learn about electric cooperatives, American history and U.S. government and walk away with a greater understanding of their roles as American citizens.

Since its beginnings in 1958, Youth Tour has become a longstanding tradition of Iowa's locally owned electric cooperatives. It's a living example of the cooperative difference – which includes giving back to communities and investing in the next generation of leaders.

We put the “tour” in Youth Tour

When the Iowa Youth Tour group arrived in D.C. on June 18, we hit the ground running. Moving as efficiently as a group of students and co-op chaperones can, we boarded and unloaded the bus at Washington's top stops to see everything possible during our time in the district. Our stops included the National Mall, various memorials and monuments, The White House, Mount Vernon, Ford's Theatre, the U.S. Capitol and many more.

Cooperative business model at work

Students also ran their own cooperative called the D.C. Munchie Cooperative, which sold reasonably priced snacks to its members. All students and chaperones became members of the cooperative. As members, they elected a board of directors, and the directors hired a co-op CEO/manager. The board and CEO met every morning over breakfast to discuss and plan activities related to the co-op.

Prior to the trip, students were asked about what type of snacks they would like to see the cooperative sell. Based on their feedback, the inventory for the cooperative was determined.

At the end of the week, the cooperative held an annual meeting and reported there was a margin. The membership fee and patronage were returned to each member.

Honoring our heroes

Another highlight of the trip is the opportunity for some of our students to lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. This year, Tristan Blair (Calhoun County Electric Cooperative Association), Owen Bell (Southern Iowa Electric Cooperative), Veronica Schechinger (Nishnabotna Valley REC) and Lizzy Kremer (East-Central Iowa REC) represented the Iowa Youth Tour at this ceremony.

Thankful for the memories

As the trip came to its inevitable end, the group reflected on the fact that we started our adventure as strangers but ended as one Iowa Youth Tour family. We are thankful for our time together and especially for the cooperatives that invested in these young leaders.

Our world is a much better place because we had this experience together!

You can see highlights from the 2023 Iowa Youth Tour by searching for “Iowa Youth Tour” on Facebook, Instagram, TikTok, Snapchat and Twitter. We also posted daily updates on www.iowayouthtour.blogspot.com.

Shelly York is the Youth Tour director for the Iowa Association of Electric Cooperatives.

KNOW THE SIGNS OF A SCAM

BY TROY AMOSS

It is no secret that consumers with a water, gas or electricity connection have long been targets for utility scams, but fraudsters have changed their tactics since the COVID-19 pandemic. As consumers became more reliant on technology for work, school and commerce, scammers noted these shifts and adapted their tactics to this changed environment.

Imposter scams are the number one type of fraud reported to the Federal Trade Commission. While scam artists may come to your door posing as a utility worker who works for the “power company,” in today’s more connected world, attempts are more likely to come through an electronic device, via email, phone or text.

Common types of scams

A scammer may claim you are overdue on your electric bill and threaten to disconnect your service if you do not pay immediately. Whether this is done in person, by phone, text or email, the scammers want to scare you into immediate payment, so you do not have time to think clearly.

If this happens over the phone, simply hang up. If you are concerned about your bill, call Chariton Valley Electric Cooperative (CVEC) at 641-932-7126. Our phone number can also be found on your monthly bill and on our website, www.cvrec.com. If the scam is by email or text, delete it before taking any action. If you are unsure, you can always contact the office, or use the portal or MY CVEC APP to check the status of your account. Remember, CVEC will never attempt to demand immediate payment after just one notice.

Some scammers may falsely claim you have been overcharged on your bill and say they want to give a refund. It sounds easy. All you need to do is click or press a button to initiate the process. If you proceed, you will be prompted to provide banking or other personal information. Instead of money going into your bank account, the scammers can drain your account and use personal information such as a social security number for identity theft.

If this “refund” scam happens over the phone, just hang up and block the phone number to prevent future robocalls. If this scam attempt occurs via email (known as a “phishing” attempt) or by text (“smishing”), do not click any links. Instead, delete it, and if possible, block the sender. If you do overpay your energy bill, CVEC will automatically apply the credit to your next billing cycle. If in doubt, contact us.

Defend yourself against scams

Be wary of calls or texts from unknown numbers. Be suspicious of an unknown person claiming to be a utility worker who requests banking or other personal information.

We want to help protect our members against utility scams, and you can help create the first line of defense. Please report any potential scams to the co-op so we can spread the word to prevent others in the community from falling victim.

Troy Amoss is the CEO/general manager of Chariton Valley Electric Cooperative.

LOCAL STUDENTS REPRESENT CVEC ON NATIONAL YOUTH TOUR PROGRAM

Jordyn Hafer from the Albia School District and Olivia Hathcock from the Moravia School District, both recently participated in the national electric cooperative Youth Tour of Washington, D.C., through sponsorship made possible by Chariton Valley Electric Cooperative's (CVEC) membership. Both spent June 18-23 in Washington, D.C., with 37 other student leaders from Iowa.

This week-long leadership development program provides high school students opportunities to learn firsthand about government, the electric cooperative business model and pressing issues in the energy industry. Students met their elected representatives in the U.S. House and Senate, toured historic sites and ran their very own snack cooperative.

The electric cooperative Youth Tour has been a joint effort of locally owned electric cooperatives, such as CVEC, statewide trade associations and the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA) for 65 years.

In addition to taking in the sights of the nation's capital, all the state groups convened for the Rural Electric Youth Day sponsored by NRECA to learn from public figures and other inspirational speakers. This year's agenda included Mike Schlappi, a four-time Paralympic Medalist and two-time world Wheelchair Basketball champion. Schlappi shared his inspiring message for every American, young or old: "Just because you can't stand up, doesn't mean you can't stand out."

Since 1958, Iowa's electric cooperatives have sponsored high school students for visits to their U.S. congressional delegations, energy and grassroots government education sessions and sightseeing in Washington, D.C.

For more information on how you can participate in CVEC's 2024 Youth Tour program, visit www.cvrec.com.

"Youth Tour was honestly such an amazing experience, and I don't know why students aren't knocking down the door to CVREC to apply for this trip. I met SO many incredible people and once everyone got to know everybody ... we all became friends, and it's like I made 37 new friends."

- Olivia Hathcock

"Thank you for sending me to D.C.! I had a wonderful time, and this was such a great experience! We went to so many places and did so many things. So again, thank you so much!"

- Jordyn Hafer

EDUCATING AND DEVELOPING TOMORROW'S COOPERATIVE LEADERS

I loved the trip so much. It was amazing to meet people from all over Iowa and the nation. I enjoyed learning more about how a cooperative is run and the time and planning that goes into it. We also learned so much about our nation's capital and America's history. Overall, this was an amazing experience, and I'm so thankful that I was given this opportunity.

Going on Youth Tour was a great honor. It was fun to meet new friends and better understand cooperatives through the example of our snack co-op. Seeing all the sights of Washington, D.C., provided memories to last a lifetime. It was an eye-opening experience and humbling to see what people have given for our country.

Colton Zupke
Butler County REC

I loved getting to see every part of Iowa represented through Youth Tour participants. The principles, aspirations and attitudes of the students truly showed the beautiful and kind nature of Iowa as a whole. One of my favorite experiences was the boat tour when we saw so many scenic views of the area while connecting with students from other states. It was truly an honor to represent Iowa and our community in the nation's capital!

To discover and experience the heart of our nation at work was amazing. The sights and sounds, the feelings and emotions will be something I will never forget. To do all these things with an amazing group of peers and leaders truly made it a trip of a lifetime.

Isabelle Brumm

Iowa's locally owned electric cooperatives have been sending high school students to Washington, D.C., since 1958! This year, 38 high school students and six chaperones representing Iowa's electric cooperatives journeyed to the nation's capital in June for the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association's 2023 National Electric Youth Tour.

On the weeklong tour, students learned about electric cooperatives, American history and U.S. government and walked away with a greater understanding of their role as an American citizen. They participated in National Youth Day, visited with their elected legislators and explored the sights around the nation's capital.

Earlier in the year, students applied for the trip through their local electric cooperatives. The Iowa students joined students from co-ops around the country for the national Youth Tour.

PLEASE MAKE ROOM FOR ROADSIDE CREWS

When the power goes out, so do Chariton Valley Electric Cooperative's (CVEC) line crews. Lineworkers are the first to respond after an outage occurs, and they work tirelessly to restore power to the communities we serve.

If you are traveling and see one of our crews on the side of the road, we kindly ask that you move over if possible and give them a little extra space to work. We deeply care about the safety of all, and this extra precaution ensures just that.

If you approach a crew while traveling on a two-lane road, moving over to the next lane might not be an option. In this case, we simply ask that you slow down when approaching roadside crews. If you approach a crew while traveling on a four-lane road, and safety and traffic conditions allow, we ask that you move over into the far lane.

Move over slow down law in Iowa

As of July 1, 2018, Iowa expanded the move over or slow down law, Iowa Code section 321.323A. This section requires motorists to move over or slow down when approaching ANY stationary vehicle with flashing lights activated, including passenger vehicles with hazard lights. Those who disobey the law could receive a hefty fine or potentially lose their driver's license.

This law is particularly important to CVEC because it helps keep our lineworkers and maintenance workers safe as they often need to perform difficult and dangerous work with electric equipment on the shoulder of the road. And even though our employees set out caution signs, orange cones, wear high visibility gear and turn on their vehicles' emergency lights, other motorists often fail to give them the room they need to do their job safely.

This law also helps keep Iowa's roads safe for everyone – drivers, emergency responders, utility workers and others. But the law does not do much good if motorists do not know about it. Please share this safety message with other drivers in your family, especially younger drivers who do not have as much experience behind the wheel.

We can each do our part to keep Iowa's roads safe by simply moving over or slowing down (preferably both) when we see stopped vehicles on the side of the road.

Let's work together to keep everyone safe on our local roadways.

LET THERE BE LIGHT

BY DARCY DOUGHERTY MAULSBY

REA Power Plant Museum near Hampton.

When I heard there was going to be a tour of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) Power Plant Museum near Hampton this summer, I was all in. As I explored the displays in the 85-year-old building, the Delco-Light plant exhibit caught my eye.

The Delco-Light plant was the step between kerosene or gas lighting and electrical lighting. The 32-volt batteries had to be periodically charged by the gas engine.

I'd first heard about this light when I was growing up on my family's farm near Lake City. My dad (who was born in 1937) sometimes mentioned that previous generations of our family used a Delco-Light plant, which included a battery system in the basement of our farmhouse.

A precious resource

I recently did some digging in our local museum's newspaper archives and found a large advertisement for Delco-Light plants in the May 28, 1925, issue of the Rockwell City Advocate newspaper.

"Everywhere this new Delco-Light has won an instant welcome," noted the ad, which listed A.N. Reed, Ft. Dodge, Iowa, as the contact. "A month ago, we announced a new Delco-Light electric plant – at a new low price – so inexpensive that it could bring the blessings of electricity to every farm home in America.

Thousands of farmers have found, in this new Delco-Light, the thing they've always wanted – a genuine Delco-Light plant that they could have completely installed on their farms. Thousands of farm women have found the Delco-Light that would lighten their burdens and bring new happiness to their families – all at a very economic cost."

The ad described the 600-watt capacity of the "strong, sturdily built" Delco-Light plant – all for only $195 (equivalent to roughly $3,400 today). Plus, "The Delco-Light dealer in your community will install your plant and wire your house for five lights to be located wherever you specify. You will receive with the light plant five beautiful, spun-brass lighting fixtures complete with bulbs."

Since I've always had easy access to electricity throughout our house, garage, barn and machine shed, I can't imagine having to pick and choose where I'd put those five precious lights.

Bringing electricity to farm families

The ad highlights how valuable and rare electricity was to farm families a century ago. Thomas Hubka addresses this in his fascinating book "How the Working-Class Home Became Modern, 1900-1940." He writes, "The electrification of households nationally improved from approximately 3% in 1900 to 80% in 1940. The 1910s and 1920s are considered the decades of mass electrification for non-rural Americans."

"Non-rural" is the key phrase. By 1930, nearly nine in 10 urban and nonfarm, rural homes had access to electricity, but only about one in 10 American farms did. Everything changed, however, after May 1935, when President Franklin Roosevelt issued an executive order creating the REA.

This order led to the construction of the Hampton-area power plant, which became operational in 1938. That plant was the first to receive a generation-and-transmission loan from the REA and was the first plant west of the Mississippi River to generate electricity for rural areas.

Finally, a major divide between rural and urban (and even small-town) America was closing. As Hubka noted, "Utility networks delivered a product of nearly universal equality. Everyone, rich and poor, is plugged into the same electric network."

No longer would farmers like my family need a Delco-Light plant to power a few lightbulbs. Ironically, the Hampton-area plant (which is now a substation) includes a modern battery system that will kick in during peak usage times. That's the interesting thing about history, isn't it? Sometimes, what's old is new again.
